PREDICATION:

This investigation was predicated upon receipt of information from Senator SAM ERVIN's office that an individual identifying himself as Secretary of the Treasury, GEORGE P. SHULTZ, had telephonically advised Senator ERVIN that Presidential tapes would be released to the Senate Committee on Presidential Campaign activities which is chaired by Senator ERVIN. This call was later determined to be a hoax.

SEX REVELATIONS ALL BALONEY

'Miss Faye Martin' —

Just a Gag

By Jerry Oppenheltner

Star-News Staff Writer

The masked, bewigged and mini-skirted call girl who came to Washington on Monday offering to tell the Senate Watergate committee about pay-for-play sex in high political places is actually an actress who participated in another hoax masterminded by New York prankster Alan Abel.

Abel, a 46-year-old filmmaker, comedy writer and advertising man—who gets his kicks by putting on the news media and the public—admitted his latest stunt yesterday in a telephone interview from his Westport, Conn., home after being recognized here on Monday by a Star-News reporter.

"It adds a little spice (to the Watergate affair) when you throw sex in," said Abel. "It was just a lark. Our intent was not to defraud, or criminally libel anyone. The whole thrust of the session was to come down to Washington and tell nothing but lies, because we all know everybody is now telling the truth," he said.

During the height of the Clifford Irving-Howard Hughes affair Abel posed as Hughes swathed in bandages. Abel called a press conference and about 150 reporters and photographers showed up to interview him and take his picture.

Abel identified his partner in the Watergate hoax as a New York actress, comedian and parttime school teacher, who played the part of a topless masseuse in an X-rated, satirical film produced by Abel two years ago called, "Is there Sex After Death?"

The actress had been part of the Second City improvisational troupe in Chicago. She could not be reached for comment.

Abel's best-known hoax is an organization he founded several years ago called the Society for Indecency to Naked Animals (SINA). In two years the society gained a membership of about 50,000 people around the country who called for the clothing of animals.

He once led a SINA demonstration in front of the White House.

AT A NEWS conference attended by more than a dozen reporters at the Shoreham-Americana hotel here on Monday, Abel introduced his hoax partner as "Miss Faye Martin," who he said was a former Darien, Conn., debutante turned prostitute.

Abel identified himself to reporters as Harry T. Rogers, a lawyer from a small Midwestern town. He said he was there to help the young woman—wearing an eye mask, blond wig and skimpy skirt—"as a friend of her family" who "didn't want to get involved."

The night before the news conference—held in a $200 a day suite which Abel got at a discount rate, according to a hotel official—he sent telegrams from New York to the major news organizations in Washington.

On Monday afternoon following the news conference, Abel, continuing his pose, telephoned the Senate Watergate committee and told John Elmore, an aide to committee counsel Samuel Dash, that "Miss Martin" would be willing to tell all.

Elmore confirmed the telephone call yesterday and said he had passed the information on, but that the staff had not decided whether to get in touch with the mystery woman.

At the press conference, the make-believe lady of the night claimed that she had been hired by politicians to spy on their political rivals and to photocopy documents they carried to her apartment for blackmail purposes.

Abel, as Rogers, also showed reporters a can of film he said contained movies of "Miss Martin" engaging in sex with a noted politician.

Abel said yesterday that the can contained a blank reel of film.

HE SAID the whole stunt cost him about $240 for the telegrams, hotel suite, air fare from New York for himself and the actress, and coffee for the reporters.

"I look at it as a deductible expense item for research and therapy—therapy for me anyhow. I have to do something like this at least once a year, otherwise I go crazy. I'd go crazy if all I had to do was play golf, fish or sit around and drink."

Now that his Watergate hoax is out of the way, Abel said, he is about to get down to serious business—lecturing and writing "on a major problem facing all of us today—the growth of the big toe."

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Date 7/27/73

ALAN IRWIN ABEL, Apartment 1C, 736 West End Avenue, New York, New York, was interviewed at his residence. Prior to the interview, ABEL was advised of the identities of the interviewing agents and told that the interview would center around his history of perpetrating hoaxes and in particular his involvement with [ ] in a press conference held in Washington, D.C., on July 9, 1973.

ABEL advised that he earns a portion of his income from perpetrating news and media appealing hoaxes and 'spoofs', which he writes about later for various magazines. He stated that he has written two books, Confessions of a Hoaxer, McMillan (1970) and The Great American Hoax, Trident Press (1966); appeared on numerous television talk shows such as JOHNNY CARSON, MERV GRIFFIN, and JACK PAAR; and also wrote, produced, and played in the movie, "Is There Sex After Death".

ABEL explained that he has not, nor ever would, do anything in his hoaxes which could be construed as libelous, defamatory, or criminal in nature. He readily admitted to staging the press interview of [ ] true name [ ] in the Sheraton American Hotel in Washington, D.C., on July 9, 1973. He stated that [ ] an actress with whom he has worked in the past, posed as a debutante-teacher, turned prostitute, who was going to "tell all" in regards to the Watergate investigation. He said that the press conference was timed for a Monday, in order to attract the Watergate Hearings press corps, who were awaiting the reopening of sessions on Tuesday, July 10, 1973.

b7c

ABEL noted that a series of penetrating questions soon broke the story of [ ] and exposed the press conference as a spoof, for which it was intended. He added that he used the name, HARRY T. ROGERS, and acted as [ ] advisor during the interview.

b6

ABEL was questioned in regards to his possible involvement in the telephone call made to Senators SAM ERVIN and HOWARD BAKER, on July 19, 1973, wherein the caller identified himself as Secretary of the Treasury GEORGE SCHULTZ and then told the senators that the President would release certain tapes and information pertinent to the Watergate investigation.

ABEL stated that he was in no way involved in the matter and would not have become involved, because it was an illegal, harmful, and detrimental act that went against his self preserving policy of avoiding incidents which could get him into trouble. He stated that he has been in New York City since returning from his two day press conference trip to Washington, D.C. (July 8-9, 1973), except for occasional trips to his recently purchased home at 128 Newtown Turnpike, Westport, Connecticut.

Asked for his whereabouts on July 19, 1973, ABEL stated that he was 99 percent sure that he was in New York City because he had a taped interview with the British Broadcasting Company (BBC) in New York City scheduled for the following morning, July 20, 1973, and would have stayed in New York as a convenience.

It was brought to ABEL's attention that newspaper articles written about the [ ] press conference stated that he, as HARRY T. ROGERS, had telephonically contacted a staff assistant to Watergate Committee counsel, [ ] in regards to having [ ] appear before the committee. He advised that he had made the call and had spoken with a man with a southern accent, who told him that his proposal would be forwarded for consideration. He was asked just how he knew what number to call to reach the Watergate Committee, to which he replied that he merely dialed "Information" in Washington, D.C., presented his proposal of having a potential witness for the Watergate Committee to the operator and she gave him a telephone number, since lost, which he called, reaching the man with the southern accent.

ABEL stated that [ ] who played the fictitious

ABEL was questioned in regard to his office at 507 Fifth Avenue. He stated that he utilizes a very small office on the third floor of 507 Fifth Avenue under the name of Spencer Productions, Incorporated and Abel-Child Productions. This office is serviced by the Marshall Business Service, also 507 Fifth Avenue, which gives the operation a large scale impression to a caller, as well as a prestigious address to a correspondent. He added that the CHILD of Abel-Child Productions was [REDACTED]

ABEL stated that the name, YETTA BRONSTEIN, appearing on his office door was fictitious. He explained that [REDACTED] has assumed this identity on occasions and has "run" for President and Mayor of New York City as a crusading Bronx housewife whose slogan is "I can get it for you wholesale". Again he noted, the whole idea being a publicity hoax.

ABEL further explained that Spencer Productions and BRUCE SPENCER are off shoots of his personality. He stated that he has used the identity of BRUCE SPENCER to act as a press agent for himself. ABEL noted that the other inscription on his office door, "SINA", stands for The Society for Indecency to Naked Animals, a fictitious organization and idea he propagated as a hoax, which drew large scale support from concerned citizens across the country.

ABEL concluded by stating that he was in no way involved in the hoax call to Senators SAM ERVIN and HOWARD BAKER on July 19, 1973, noting that it was not his style and was against his principles.

Asked for possible suspects, ABEL stated that contact with [REDACTED]
